

American Redstart

American Redstarts are migratory New World warblers. Males have black heads and upperparts, with white underparts. They have flashes of orange feathers on their wings and tails, which they flare while searching for prey in order to startle and confuse potential insect prey.

See colors and learn more

